GREEN CHILI PEPPERS

Conventional and organic green chili peppers are the immature fruit from a variety of chili pepper species. Green chili peppers are a staple in Southwestern, Tex-Mex, and Mexican cuisine. Typically, when food companies and green chili pepper suppliers use the term 'green chilies,' they are referring to the Anaheim pepper. Organic green chili peppers are great ingredients for food manufacturers. They are much milder than jalapenos and perfect for flavoring dishes in between mild and hot. Organic green chili peppers are used diced to add flavor to various sauces, salsas, and marinades.
